GLSEN's: Athletics & Facilities Institute
Taking place in sessions on Monday, April 20, 2020

This day will be a pivotal convening of LGBTQ liaisons and student athletes from different school districts across the country who will discuss strategies that support LGBTQ-inclusive sports and Physical Education programs in schools across the country. In 2009, GLSEN launched the first of its kind recommendations and trainings for LGBTQ student athletes and coaches. As we revamp this programming, we will need to assess what is being done in school districts around the country, with both supportive policies and without existing ones. At this summit, attendees will share their district’s policies and best practices. Attendees will also name continuing struggles and brainstorm recommendations that best inform GLSEN’s decades of work to make schools safe, affirming, and inclusive of all students regardless of sexual orientation, gender identity, and gender expression.

The day will be divided into 3 components:
- Sports
- Physical Education
- Facilities

GLSEN will provide a framework to discuss the roles of administrators, coaches, and P.E. teachers in their allyship with LGBTQ students and explore best practices, policies and procedures, and strategies for implementation.

Other Topics Offered in Concurrent Sessions Include:
- Policy and funding
- State and federal laws and resources
- Assessment, issues and needs among LGBTQ youth of color
- Spectrums and fluidity within sexual orientation
- LGBQ inclusive curriculum
- LGBTQ student safety
- LGBTQ students in athletics
- Bullying, allyship and bystanderism
- Self esteem, risk assessment and support systems
